

NSU offers second century summer learning camps

Tahlequah, Okla. – The Northeastern State University Department of Communication, Art and Theatre will offer nine weeklong camps this summer for area preschool-high school students.

“We are so pleased to have the opportunity to offer children in Tahlequah and surrounding areas the chance to do something new this summer,” said Dr. Dana Eversole, professor of mass communication and camp adviser. “It’s so nice to provide a safe, fun environment to stimulate their minds during their vacation.”

The nine camps are broken into different areas of interest, including camps for leadership, photography, cooking, bugs, art, reading, performing arts and two for science.

Camp teachers are members of the NSU community and outside professionals who are excited to offer this community outreach project to area youth.

“We are looking forward to having so many young faces on campus this summer,” Eversole said. “Each one of the camps will be unique and engaging.”

Camps are available to students ages 4 through high school. Price is $125 per camper, which includes lunch and a snack. The camps each run for five days from 8:30 a.m. – 5 p.m., except for CSI Science which runs four days after the Independence Day holiday. Drop off and pick up will be at the NSU University Center. On Fridays, camp participants will take a field trip.

Buggin’ Out is intended for children ages 4-7, the leadership camp for high school students. Other camps are for ages 8 and up.

Camps offered are:

- June 27 – July 1: Art of Color and Buggin’ Out
- July 5-8: CSI Science
- July 11-15: Photography 101 and Mythbusters: Science
- July 18-22: Sisters Grimm and Light, Drama, Action
- July 25-29: Leadership and Iron Chef Kid

Brochures are available in the UC director’s office, Cyndi’s Salon, Vidalia’s Cafe and at all Tahlequah public schools. Applications are attached to brochures and can be turned in with fees to Traci Bunch of the communication, art and theatre department. Credit cards are accepted.
